Group Size: 10 - 30

Key Stages: KS2, KS3, KS4, KS5

Team Building Skills: Communication, Observation,

Equipment: Chairs

Dig Dig Dig is the perfect activity for groups that are getting to know each other.

The participants need to sit in a circle on chairs. There should be one person without a chair and this person should stand in the middle of the circle.

The person in the middle can ask any question that they like. For example; Who has a cat? At this point everybody who has a cat must stand up and move to an empty chair. They are not allowed to move to a chair either side of where they were sitting.

As well as all those people looking for a chair that “have a cat”, the person who asked the question is also looking for an empty seat.

This will generally mean that a different participant will be left without a seat. This allows for somebody new to stand up and ask a question.

As well as getting individuals to stand up and speak to the group, everybody will learn some new facts about their team mates.
